

New matter for the society department of the Sunday Herald must be handed in to the society editor by 7 p. m. Saturday. It cannot be accepted otherwise for publication on Sunday morning.

THE week which is gone was enjoyed somewhat by the visit of the high army officials, who spent some three days here, but aside from the pleasant events which were given in their honor, the season has been one of almost unbroken rest. The temporary lull in the advance of the spring weather has given additional time for the plans of the athletic maidens and men for the utilizing of the long spring days which are soon to be with us. While they are anxiously awaiting the opening of the country club and the advent of the golf season, several of the athletic girls are talking of forming a club for the time being, and are planning to hold a series of tennis matches.

The plan is to secure the exclusive use of the alley for about two mornings in each week and play matches on the lawn.

There is talk of another assembly to follow immediately after the Easter festivities, and the older, as well as the young set, are holding out for a social gathering. Two weeks remain before the Easter gayety begins, and as the Lenten season has been rather quiet, this gives promise to be one of more decided merriment than usual.

The coming week shows little save a few events in honor of Saint Patrick tomorrow, and the unique luncheon to be given by Mrs. Ira Levi's next Saturday. This will be a cosmopolitan affair, at which the guests will speak French, Italian, or German, according to their tastes.

The first Saturday in April will witness the opening of the country club, and the manager for the springtime will be Miss Woodward.

Informal Reception.

A pleasant event in honor of the military visitors to the post was the informal at home of Mrs. Young last Monday evening. The hospitality of the army was everywhere evident, and the delightful informality of army life was thoroughly enjoyed. Birthday Dinner.

The 6th birthday of Mrs. Harriet Hanks was celebrated by her children in a most delightful manner, both for the honored mother and for a number of her oldest and dearest friends. The affair was at the home of Mrs. Hyde and was arranged by her, Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Sears, the daughters of Mrs. Hanks. The house was profusely and beautifully decorated, the table decorations of yellow daffodils and red carnations being especially pretty. At the conclusion of the dinner a guessing contest was enjoyed, in which Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Rossier and Mrs. May Hanks of Logan cut for the prize, which was won by Mrs. Hanks. The prize was a handsome photograph of the guest of honor. The friends who were invited to meet Mrs. Hanks were Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Sears, the daughters of Mrs. Hanks, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Sears, the daughters of Mrs. Hanks, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Sears, the daughters of Mrs. Hanks.
